Sarah Ferguson has revealed all about her feelings for her ex-husband Prince Andrew while being hypnotised by Harley Street hypnotist Karen Mann for a new reality TV show.

Finding Sarah follows the Duchess of York through her attempts to lose weight and looks at a series of scandals, including when she was caught on tape offering access to Prince Andrew for $724,000 (£446,000).

Sarah Ferguson admitted she wishes she hadn't divorced Prince Andrew

As part of the tell-all documentary, which will be shown in the US next month, Sarah seeks out the services of a hypnotherapist and admits during the session that she and her ex-husband are still close.

'He and I both wish we'd never got divorced, but we did. I wish I could go back and be the bride again, but I can't,' the duchess said.

She added: 'He's my best friend and the father of my children'

Sarah's well-documented indiscretions also culminated in her being snubbed at the recent royal wedding, even though her daughters Princess Beatrice and Princess Eugenie received invites.

Speaking on The Oprah Winfrey show, the duchess admitted she was crushed at not being included on the guest list, although Prince Andrew kept her abreast of events.

'When Andrew went with the girls, we were talking all morning and he was saying, "It's OK. Just remember we had such a good day. Our wedding was so perfect",' Sarah said.
